Guaranteed Confidentiality is essential to ethical obligations and ensures improved service delivery. It is not the same as anonymity and pertains to protection of information disclosed by and individual in a relationship of trust with the expectation that it will not be divulged to others without permission.

Confidentiality should involve discretion and respect for a person's privacy. It should involve not revealing the identity of the person/ "subject" or their personal information to any unauthorised person.

Beneficence requires providers to do what will be for the users' best interest.

Non-Exploitation means not taking advantage or abusing a user or group directly or indirectly through the information of power.

Competence requires that individuals work within the boundaries of their abilities based on their education, supervised experience, consultation, study or professional experience and continue to strive to increase their knowledge and skills.

Maintaining Boundaries means maintaining a sense o
